

Executive Director's Corner - Nancy DeStefanis

We hope all of you have had a lovely summer.

We just completed a successful matching grant campaign. An anonymous major donor pledged $7,500 to match donations we raised during July and August. A big thank you to the major donor and all the supporters whose contributions made it a success!

Here at San Francisco Nature Education we've been preparing for another exciting school year and expanded public programs and lectures.

Please check our updated website at: www.sfnature.org to see all of the upcoming programs.

I'm also delighted to tell you that San Francisco Nature Education has three new staff members:

Clayton Yee, Associate Director

Jack Baird, School Program Coordinator

Lori Mathieu, School Program Associate

To learn more about them, please visit our website.

I hope to see you soon at one of our walks or lectures!

Heron Watch 2007 -- New Photos on Website

Visit the Heron Watch 2007 page on our website, under "Library and Resources" for photos by Jim Sullivan, SFNE volunteer and nature photographer.

The colony continues to thrive -- 5 nests and 13 chicks fledged in 2007.

Total number of fledglings at Stow Lake Colony since 1993 -- 110!

Looking for California Quail...

Eureka! Pair of adult quail with covey in the bushes

Hike through bamboo forest was great!

What's New on Our Bookshelf

Laws Field Guide to the Sierra Nevada

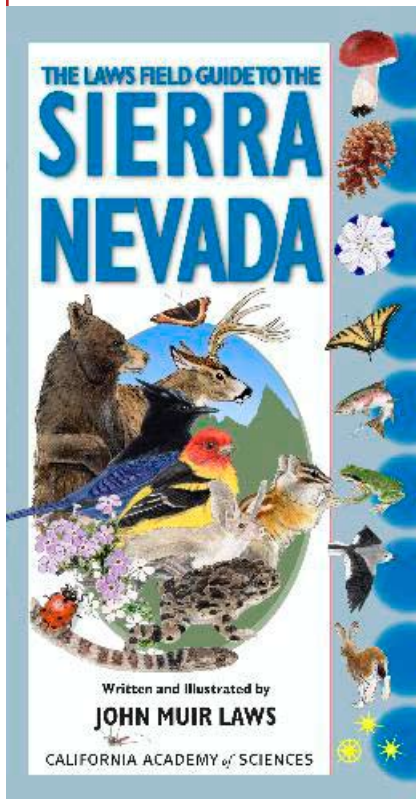

Many of you have already met or taken a class with the author, environmental educator Jack Laws.

Jack has served as President of SF Nature and continues as chair of our Advisory Committee.

The book is absolutely beautiful, filled with Jack's watercolors and helpful information on identifying all the flora and fauna of the Sierra.

I highly recommend this book and it makes a great gift.
